

Communicating Principles of Stewardship to Our Children

1. What do principles of stewardship communicate to our children?
 - a. God's ownership over all of life – not just our possessions.
 - b. Our responsibility for the care and use of all things for His glory and the good of others.
 - c. Our availability and the availability of all things for the gospel.
 - d. Our trust in, and our reliance upon, God is demonstrated by our loose grip on our possessions and resources.

2. How do we communicate our stewardship principles to our children?
 - a. We must teach them to our children.
 - b. We must train our children in them.
 - c. We must model them to our children.
 - d. We must recognize, praise and reward our children as they demonstrate them.
 - e. We must do all we can as parents to enable our children to live out their own stewardship.
